CONFERENCE ON IRELAND AGAIN ENDS IN DEADLOCK

Ulster And Free State Are Unable To Agree

COSGRAVE GOES

Returns To Dublin As London Meeting Breaks Up

(Reuter's Service)
London, Aug. 3.—Mr. Cosgrave has returned to Ireland.

(Reuter's Service)
London, Aug. 2.—The Acting Premier of Northern Ireland, Lord Londonderry, today joined the conference between Mr. Thomas and Mr. Cosgrave at the Colonial Office.

This is the first time that the Irish leaders have conferred since the abortive conference in April. Later, the Irish conference broke up without arranging for a future meeting. The conference was very secret, but it is believed that they have failed to agree, and consequently, the Government will proceed with the legislation.

(Reuter's Service)
London, August 4.—The Westminster Gazette states that at Saturday's meeting of the Irish Boundary Conference, the Marquess of Londonderry intimated Ulster's willingness to appoint a Boundary Commissioner. If provision was made for the Commission's terms of reference to be limited in changes in order to simplify frontier rectification. The Government was not able to give the desired assurance but offered to refer the matter to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council for definition. The Marquess of Londonderry was not able to agree but Mr. Cosgrave was willing.

Seaman Sentenced By British Court On Assault Charge

A British seaman, Sidney Hughes, was yesterday found guilty on a charge of assault and sentenced to a week's imprisonment or $10 fine at the British Police Court.

Hughes was arrested Sunday at the Hanbury Institute after having demonstrated his pugilistic powers on an employee of the place. The British Consulate had been supporting Hughes there for some time, but decided to let him get a ship and shift for himself, and he was ordered to leave. At meal-time on the day of his arrest, however, he turned up as usual, but his request for some sustenance for his weak and emaciated body of 135 pounds was met with a cold and heartless refusal.

Even a worm will turn and Hughes felt that this direct refusal of food, after he had been already advised to leave the place, was adding insult to injury. He promptly plugged the messenger on the nose, then over the eye, leaving vari-colored decorations to mark the trail of his emphatic caresses. He had apparently forgotten his original purpose, and decided to use the face of his antagonist as a punching-bag for training practice, when some other parties interfered and yesterday the manager of the Hanbury Institute appeared as complainant on behalf of his fellow employee. Hughes was grieved when accused in Court of being the author of the decorations on the Hanbury employee's face. "Why," he said, "a man of my weight would make more of a mark than that." The Court, however, found him guilty, and gave him the alternative of $10 fine or seven days' imprisonment.

(Reuter's Service)
London, August 4.—The Westminster Gazette notes extraordinary activity in Kentish war material factories in connection with orders for the Japanese Government, for whom Messrs. Vickers Limited are making 140,000 machine-guns, and Messrs. Scotts Ltd. of Graydon are executing a large order for a special type of tractor lorry.

Taken By Death

Joseph Conrad Passes Away At Age Of 66

(Reuter's Service)
London, Aug. 3.—The death is announced of the well-known novelist, Mr. Joseph Conrad, at the age of 66.

Joseph Conrad, world famous writer of sea stories is dead. Born in 1857 of Polish parents, exiled by the Russian Government in the Ukraine, he followed the sea from an early age until forty. From that time until the present he has been engaged in writing the novels of the sea that have made him renowned.

Conrad's latest book, published in 1923, was "The Rover." Among the twenty or more novels he has written some of the best known are: "The Nigger of the Narcissus," "Lord Jim," "Nostromo," "Chance," "Victory," "The Rescue" and "Typhoon." The stories are in the Far East.

All of Conrad's writings are in English and he is, perhaps, the only author who has attained such prominence in a literature other than that of his native tongue. He is said to have known nothing of the English language before the age of twenty-one.

His last days were spent at his home in Kent, he did most of his writing.

Soviet Envoy Moves In, But Not Officially Yet

The Soviet representatives in Shanghai have removed their offices to the former Consulate in Whangpoo Road.

This much, and no more, may be said with reasonable assurance of its truth, but all unofficially. Officially, nothing is known. If one were to judge by the zealous precautions to maintain inviolate secrecy in the matter, the removal and occupancy of the Whangpoo Road premises are real affairs of state, a deep, closely-shrouded mystery of which no ordinary mortal should have the slightest cognizance.

The one fact of the actual removal represents the results of a whole afternoon's intensive sleuthing. And beyond that, there simply isn't any more.

Inspired by reports that the Soviet authorities would officially take over the former Consulate this week, a reporter sought out Mr. R. B. Ellender, Soviet representative in charge here, at his offices at 14 Kiukiang Road, early yesterday afternoon. There he discovered through the medium of a too talkative Chinese office boy that, while the Russian Volunteer Fleet and the Centralosyus (England) were still functioning on the premises, Mr. Ellender, his secretaries, and, in fact, everyone directly connected with the business of representing the Soviet in Shanghai, had cleared out entirely and were now installed in the former consulate.

Hsi-Ho Dyke Bursts; Tientsin's River Is One Foot Lower Now

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Tientsin, Aug. 3.—The Hsi-ho dyke burst this morning near Yangliuching, flooding the depression to the South between the Grand Canal and the Hsi-ho. As an immediate result Tientsin's river is a foot lower and it is anticipated that this relief will continue for four days when the depression will be filled. The water is then expected to burst the Grand Canal dykes and flow to the sea.

YOSHIZAWA BACK TO RESUME PARLEY WITH KARAKHAN

Prospects For Negotiations Are Not Bright, He Asserts

(Eastern News Agency)
Peking, Aug. 3.—Mr. Yoshizawa, Japanese Minister to Peking, who has for some time past been on a visit to Tokyo, returned to his post here at 10 o'clock this morning. Interviewed by a representative of the Eastern News Agency, the Japanese Minister made a statement as follows: The Russo-Japanese conference will probably be re-opened either on the 5th or 6th instant subject to arrangements with M. Karakhan. The policy of the present Cabinet of Japan towards Soviet Russia, in my opinion, 'not of a firmer nature than that adopted by its predecessor but it appears that the prospects of the forthcoming negotiations are not so bright, though it is rather premature to harbor any pessimistic view in this respect. So far as I am concerned, I am not yet in a position to forecast the prospects of the negotiations unless I have had interviews with M. Karakhan two or three times. I feel assured that my recent visit to Saghalien will without doubt prove profitable to the Russo-Japanese conference. While in Mukden on my way to Peking, I had only a brief interview with Marshal Chang Tso-lin, on account of his toothache. The question of raising the status of the Japanese Legation in Peking to Embassy is now under consideration by the Tokyo Government.

Peking, August 3.—Lieutenant Colonel Mike, who is to attend the Russo-Japanese conference as a Japanese military expert, is expected to arrive here on the 5th instant.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, August 4.—The Japanese Minister, Mr. Yoshizawa, returned to Peking yesterday. He will call on the Soviet Envoy, M. Karakhan, tomorrow in order to arrange resumption of negotiations between Japan and Russia.

(Independent News Service)
Hankow, July 31.—According to news received here from Canton, the Shamen strike is extending to the whole of the Canton City. The coolies employed at Messrs. Butterfield and Swire's godown in Canton ceased work and were followed by those in the employ of the Jardine, Matheson and Co. The Chinese employees in the foreign silk factories are said to have also struck. The silk clearances from Canton have completely ceased and the stocks are accumulating. This extension of the strike is a crippling blow to trade. Business in Canton threatens to be held up also as the city has been dependent on Shamen for many commodities. In view of the likelihood of the walk-out continuing indefinitely, the Chinese merchants are considering plans to carry on business independently. The scheme under consideration is said to be of a comprehensive nature and includes not merely transactions for imports and exports, but

1.—When he had come to the consulate.
2.—When the remainder of the office had moved into the consulate.
3.—Whether Mr. Ellender had been to the consulate.
4.—Whether he would come to the consulate.
5.—Whether the flag had been raised.
6.—Whether the flag would be raised.

British Premier Is Praised As Great Statesman By Herriot

UP TO GERMANY

Berlin Must Bring About Final Peace

(Reuter's Service)
Paris, August 3.—The Premier, M. Herriot, interviewed by the London correspondent of the Petit Parisien, attributed the success of the Inter-Allied Conference primarily to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, who, he said, had shown himself a great statesman. The future would show that decisions had been taken which were not only in conformity with the interests of Britain but were likely powerfully to promote the cause of peace. Very complete cordiality had prevailed throughout the conversations and they felt that peace was now possible. It was now for Germany to show herself equally wise and bring about the final reestablishment of peace in Europe.

GERMANY HOLDS RITES FOR DEAD IN WORLD WAR

Ebert Defends Nation's Acts On Tenth Anniversary Of Outbreak

(Reuter's Service)
Berlin, August 3.—The tenth anniversary of the outbreak of the War was celebrated all over Germany as a day of remembrance to the fallen. The flags on all public buildings in Berlin were half-masted.

President Ebert, accompanied by members of the Cabinet, addressed a huge meeting from the steps of the Reichstag, in which he declared that Germany ten years ago had resorted to arms solely in defense of the Fatherland. He adjured Germans to rehabilitate the Fatherland. Military hands then played a funeral march, after which two minutes' silence was observed. Flags were then hoisted to the tops of the poles.

The police arrested several Communists who created a disturbance by singing the International and scattering revolutionary pamphlets.

(Reuter's Service)
London, August 4.—Reduced facsimiles of the news columns and placards of August 4, 1914, and picture paper illustrations of the earliest war scenes constitute the most striking feature in the press references to the tenth anniversary of the outbreak of the great struggle. The events which led to the hostilities and Britain's participation and the post-war trend of European affairs is dealt with at length in articles while eminent statesmen and Service experts discuss the various phases on the eve of the outbreak. Yesterday was observed in churches throughout the country as a day of remembrance for the British Dead.

CANTONESE RECRUITING PLOT UNCOVERED HERE; 21 CHINESE ARRESTED

French Detectives Uncover Widespread Machinations In Solving Mysterious Shooting In Which Detective's Second Was Slain; Revolvers Are Confiscated

Through the arrest of twenty-one Chinese in widely scattered sections of the French Concession and the International Settlement Saturday night and Sunday morning, the detective branch of the French police department believes that it has uncovered in Shanghai a widespread campaign for the recruiting and arming of soldiers for Sun Yat-sen's forces in Canton.

A confession obtained from one of the men under arrest, who says that he was a former general in the Southern forces relates that he was dispatched to Shanghai from the South for the purpose of recruiting men here.

Three of the men arrested were found to be in possession of revolvers.

The investigation, in which the entire French detective department was called upon to participate for a period of several days, had its impetus in the mysterious shooting last Tuesday night of a French detective's second, a Chinese, at the corner of Rue de Consulat and Rue de Saigon.

At about 8 o'clock on that night, a Chinese suddenly drew a pistol and fired one shot into the entrance of a house at the corner.

A Chinese policeman nearby saw him and blew his whistle. The detective's second ran up and attempted to arrest the man, but the latter fired at close-range, hitting the detective's second in the head. The injured man dropped to the ground, while his assailant escaped, and died later after being removed to a hospital.

"GENERAL" IS ARRESTED

Search for the murderer was immediately started by the French police, but no clue to his identity was uncovered until detectives from the French force came upon a man giving the name of Zeng Kong-kong, alias Zeng Seng, who was living in the Ming Li 2nd hotel in the French Concession.

Under questioning by the detectives, Zeng admitted that it was he at whom the assassin's fire had been originally directed, and it was as a result of his further admissions that the twenty other men were rounded up.

Zeng, according to his story, the French detectives, is a native of Tsungling and is a general in command of the 4th brigade of the Kiangsi army stationed at Canton. He came to Shanghai under orders from General Li Ming-yang to recruit soldiers for the Cantonese armies.

He was sent here, he said at (Continued on Page 2)

CHINESE TO TAKE UP RUSS SHIP ISSUE TODAY

Meeting Of Prominent Men Will Be Held At Foreign Bureau

Chinese officials, the local Chinese gentry and prominent merchants will meet today at the Bureau of Foreign Affairs to consider the question of the repatriation of the Russians on board the Russian vessels now anchored at Wosung. The meeting is called by General Ho Feng-shan and Commissioner Hsu Yuan. Over 100 prominent Chinese have been asked to give their advice on the matter.

It will be remembered that following the signing of the draft agreement between China and Soviet Russia, the Soviet authorities have been constantly demanding the handing over of the three White Russian ships in Wosung. The men in the ships, however, refuse to give up their vessels which they claim to be their own property and threatened to blow up all the craft if forced to surrender. The latest development is that they will yield if they are given a monetary consideration. The Chinese authorities, while willing to accommodate the desperates, it is understood, are resolved that they should not land in Shanghai and become public charges.

Dalal, the High Commissioner for India, represented the Dominions, Sir James Allen, the High Commissioner for New Zealand, and Sir Edgar Walton, the High Commissioner for the Union of South Africa, being unavoidably absent.

The jurists up to the present have not yet decided whether the decision of the reparations commission shall be unanimous or majority decisions. Mr. MacDonald has sent an invitation to Germany expressing the hope that the German delegation would arrive in London at an early date.

Appended to the communiqué are the reports of the first and third jurists' committees, the substance of which has already been cabled.

Cantonese Recruiting Plot Uncovered Here

the request of General Tsing Pachi, an advisor to Sun Yat-sen, and he gave the name of General Li Ki-kun as commander-in-chief of the corps to which he is attached.

RESULT OF FRED

Following his arrival in Shanghai, Zeng lived at various addresses in the French Concession, one of the last of which was at a house in Rue Chapel, where he resided with a man named Ou Seng-ching, who, he said, was a former general in the Cantonese forces. Zeng and Ou had a misunderstanding, however, as a result of which Zeng removed to the Ming Li Zai hotel.

There he was visited by several former soldiers, who came to request money, and Ou Seng-ching is also said to have been a frequent visitor.

On the evening of July 29, shortly before the shooting occurred, Zeng said that he was visited by Ou Seng-ching, and that they discussed the assassination of Yui Ho-nen, a bandit chief of the village of Zanching, who was killed in an alleyway off Yunnan Road last March. There had been a disagreement over the use of 200 men, for whom revolvers had been purchased, and who were to have been sent to Tsungming to cause trouble, but who were sent to Canton instead.

After their conversation, Zeng said, he left Ou Seng-ching to go to a barber shop at the corner of Rue du Consulat and Rue de Sélemon. In the meantime, Zeng alleges, Ou gathered five of his cohorts about him, and laid in wait for Zeng.

RAIDS ARE CONDUCTED

When Zeng emerged from the barber shop, one of the men fired a shot, which missed Zeng. Then, when the detective's second grappled with him, the man with the revolver shot and fatally wounded the detective's second.

Acting on information furnished by Zeng, the French detective force and Settlement police conducted simultaneous raids Saturday night and Sunday morning in widely separated districts, as a result of which 20 men were arrested and three revolvers confiscated. Most of the men arrested are ex-soldiers and natives of Tsungming. Others were men who had been recruited for the Cantonese armies.

An exciting sequel to the arrests occurred Sunday morning. While some of the men were being questioned in the office of the intelligence department in the Avenue Joffre police station, one of the prisoners, who had been handcuffed to another man, broke the handcuff and attempted to escape. He succeeded in gaining the street, but after a pursuit of five minutes in which one shot was fired, he was recaptured by foreign detectives.

Reports that Cantonese were active here in recruiting soldiers for use in the South have been current for some time, but the facts uncovered by the French police are the first to bear out these reports definitely.

Among the men arrested, the police assert that they have the man who fired the shot which killed the detective's second, as well as his companions. These will be charged in the French Mixed Court with murder.

be raised.
7—Whether the consulate was open officially.
8—Whether the consulate was open unofficially.
9—Whether the consulate was open at all.

A second visit, by happy chance, was more successful, but in trifling measure. One of Mr. Elleder's secretaries happened to be going into his office at the time. Halted and questioned, he admitted that Mr. Elleder, he, and the whole consular force had moved in, and he was of the opinion that the Russian Volunteer Fleet and the Centrosyus would maintain their present offices at 14 Kiukiang Road. He did not know when the consulate would be officially opened; anything that was to be said must come from Mr. Elleder, and, on second thought, it would be better not to say anything about his earlier statements with regard to the removal, as they were entirely unofficial. Mr. Elleder was the only one who knew anything at all about anything. Which closed that interview.

A third try found Mr. Elleder in his office—at least it was said that he was in—but then it was after hours, and Mr. Elleder was busy, very, very busy in fact. So busy was Mr. Elleder that it was twenty-five minutes before he could be disturbed by having a card sent into him. And after another ten minutes, the cheering information came that Mr. Elleder had nothing to say and that he would be unable to see anyone that day.

Claire Holds Japanese All Stars To Two Hits

The Gallipers certainly had a big time Sunday afternoon when they felled the All Star Japanese aggregation by a 5-0 score. It happened that the Japanese turned out to be not so all star as they were reputed to be, but with big Verne Claire hurling like he did on Sunday there are very few teams in existence which could stand up under the pressure.

The local hurling ace looked fine on the mound, for he allowed the Japanese but two hits in the full nine innings while he sent eleven of the 28 batters who faced him down the strikeout route. Bristow had a lot to do with the game also for his stellar backstopping was a great advantage to Claire for it gave him great encouragement.

The locals were unable to do anything in the first or second innings for it was the latter of these two frames the Japanese hurler Tsutsumi who started the game like a whirlwind sent three Gallipers back to the bench before they had time to touch the ball. However when the end of the third inning was reached there was a different tale on the score board for instead of a big round "goose egg" there was the numeral two hanging in its place for in this stage the locals started their four inning rally.

BUCK TAYLOR BUNTS

In this third inning pitcher Claire led the Gallipers off by a single. Then came Mr. Buck Taylor, who has set his mind to bunting for the last two months but although he fails he did not lose heart at the game. So after Verne had arrived at the initial bag safely, Taylor was still bent on his bunting idea and he actually did down one of the most beautiful bunts seen on the local diamond this year. Claire was sent down to third by Thatch's bingle but when he and Al Taylor tried to pull the squeeze play he was caught between bases. However while this was happening Jerry had safely reached third. On the next pitched ball Taylor was hit in the midsection and after registering intense pain he went to first base and from there immediately stole second. Scott then scored both Thatch and Taylor by his long crack to center field although Thatch and Stark who followed him with a single did not have time to reach first. Taylor's bunt was the first of the initial inning. After Taylor had binged in the fourth frame, Bristow gave the ball a long ride to the outfield and when Taylor started for home, Japanese outfielder overthrew at the plate and allowed another marker to be tallied up.

Although the Japanese were held to two hits one of these happened to be a long wallop to left field and rolled to the Golf Club but when Buck Taylor heaved the pill in to Thatch who lost no time in presenting it to Bristow the Japanese hitter, Kimura was stopped at the home plate.

The Gallipers repeated their results of the third inning in the fifth when they pushed up two more runners when they banged out three hits. In the following frame Buck Taylor put up the final marker for after he singled he was followed by two more hits and then a sacrifice fly on the part of Stark.

The Gallipers' line-up was somewhat switched around in this game with the All Stars for besides the regular Sunday absence of Harry Kingman, Freddie Bulard did not put in an appearance so that Thatch took his place at the shortstop position while Bradford Taylor played a wonderful game on the initial sack for he has now proved himself eligible for the position every Sunday. In spite of his slow motion Jawn Scott held the hot corner position in fine style for his grabs were a great help to Claire and his two hit record.

Flooded Area In North Is Inspected From Air

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 1.—Due to the generosity of the Director General of Aviation in making a large passenger aeroplane available and to the less commendable action of Mr. W. G. Northridge, who undertook to act as pilot (in spite of the fact that later on in the day he inaugurated a passenger service to Peking), a party of ten, including Famine Relief Commission and Chihli River Commission officials, several correspondents and a cinematographer were this morning given what may accurately be described as an armchair view from the air of the flooded areas between here and Tientsin. Not the whole of the area actually under water was seen—that would take considerable longer than the two and a half hours which the party spent in the air this morning—but the reconnaissance was wide enough in extent to give a very fair view of the general situation.

The investigators were fortunate in having with them Mr. S. Eliason, of the Chihli River Commission, who made a special trip down from Tientsin last night and brought with him an armful of charts and maps. Others specially interested in the results of the tour were Messrs. W. H. Mallory and F. S. Djang, Executive Secretary and Associate Executive Secretary respectively of the China International Famine Relief Commission, Peking.

After a perfect take-off from Nanyuan at 9 o'clock the plane flew over General Feng Yuxiang's camps and followed along the Peking-Mukden railway as far as the outskirts of Tientsin. Turning to the westward, it then followed the Hai Ho up to Yang La Ching and returned towards Tientsin down the Tientsin-Pekow railway. Thence it made the journey back to Nanyuan by much the same route that was taken on the trip out.

Soon after the Peking-Mukden railway had been picked up the break in the dyke at Ho Lu Fa was seen to the westward.

Shortly afterwards the plane was passing over the flooded country north of Lao Fa where a big depression has been filled up by the water which has down through breaks in the Hai Ho dikes made at Tsao Chun and elsewhere. Flying sometimes as low down as a hundred feet the observers had an excellent view of the Hai Ho, which, according to Mr. Eliason, rose yesterday up to the 1917 maximum of 7.9 metres. It seemed to be about twice its normal width and was perilously near to the top of the dykes which are at present keeping it from brimming its banks. Eddies and swirls clearly dis-cernible on the surface of the river here and there marked the swiftness of its flow. Near Yang La Ching, on the southern bank of the Hai Ho, groups of men were seen moving about like a colony of ants amongst a long line of little matchboxes rigged up as temporary shelters. These were the farmers and villagers from the surrounding country and they were guarding the dykes with sandbags against the encroachment of the flood waters and with firearms against possible attempts on the part of other people to breach the dykes. These are the folk who would suffer inundation at once if the suggestion to breach the dykes of the Hai Ho at certain points near here were carried out. Expert opinion is that if they can manage to fight back the flood waters for the next three weeks they may be able to escape with little damage to their property but if, on the other hand, the river should burst its bounds then their fate will be worse than if the dykes had been allowed to be breached when the suggestion was first put forward some time ago. At all events the people themselves seem quite determined to take a chance on it, however long the odds may be.

The precarious situation of the Red Bridge at Tientsin was clearly seen and it was noted that in this vicinity there were several houses partly under water. In the greater part of the area of several hundred square miles passed over this morning most of the houses seemed to have escaped this fate. This is due to the fact that nearly all the villages in the big river basins, where the threat of floods is a constantly present one, are built up on prominences which have now, in most instances, become islands between which the only possible communication is by means of sampans.

The railway lines seem to be in no immediate danger although for many miles the water is lapping along the foot of the embankments on both sides. One of the most extensive of the flooded areas is the basin of the Ta Ching Ho which, though the aeroplane merely skirted it, appeared like an inland sea. Even an aerial survey of the affected regions would take probably several days but it was evident this morning that the farmers in the Peking-Tientsin district are going to have a pretty hard time of it this year and most likely next year as well. Owing to drought (a word which sounded strangely in the ears of those who saw the vast inundation this morning) the spring crops were poor, in many cases it is extremely unlikely that the present crop will ever be harvested and it is considered doubtful whether in some of the worst affected areas the water will have drained off sufficiently by the autumn to make possible the planting of the next one.

As regards Tientsin, the situation is still doubtful but it is thought that if the flood waters do reach the city they will do so gradually. In some cases, it was stated this morning, people living above the flood levels are making sandbag dykes around their houses while others living in the lower areas are taking no precautions at all.

and invite them to join. It was also decided to hold this second preparatory meeting on August 5. The meeting today will be held at four o'clock in the Shanghai General Chamber of Commerce. Representatives from Kiangsu Educational Association, the National Association for Improving Education in China, the General Chamber of Commerce, the National Committee, Y.M.C.A., the National Christian Council and other associations, will be present. Several distinguished persons are expected to attend the meeting. It is expected that a tentative committee will be elected and that draft copies will be made in reference to declarations, regulations and the policy and program of the association to be discussed and passed by the meeting.

Letters were received from the Kiangsu Provincial Guild and the Pharmacy Association in Peking expressing their earnest desire to join this anti-narcotic association and expressing their willingness to carry out any resolutions passed by the association.

HAVE YOU A BABY IN YOUR HOUSE?

If So Let Baby's Own Tablets Help You To Keep Him Happy and Well

Childhood ailments come quickly and means should always be at hand to promptly fight them. Baby's Own Tablets are the ideal home remedy, for they are easily administered, the little ones like them, and they are guaranteed absolutely free from opiates, narcotics or other harmful drugs, so can be safely given to even the youngest and most delicate babe in arms.

The first effect of Baby's Own Tablets that is usually noted is a gentle movement of the bowels, due to their cleansing efficacy. When this happens it is the best possible proof that the Tablets were needed and are doing their work. But this is not all their work—far from it. The next thing is that they sweeten the breath, cool the feverishness, if any, stop the snuffling and wheezing if the child had caught cold, relieve the pain and griping if it has indigestion, colic or summer complaint, allay the pains accompanying the cutting of teeth, expel worms, prevent cramp, and in a natural way quickly promote health-giving sleep.

Of chemists or post free, 40 cents the vial from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangsu Road, Shanghai.

This pair of Red Lacquer Vases were made in the Ming Dynasty in the reign of the Emperor Hsuan Te, 1426. A. D. They are stated to have been presented to the late Marquis Tseng Kuo-fan for meritorious services rendered during the Taping Rebellion in 1851-1856. They were purchased by the present owner at Chungsha in 1918 from a member of the late Marquis Tseng's family, where they had been kept as an heirloom for over sixty (60) years. The reason for their sale was due to the critical situation prevailing throughout the province of Hunan owing to repeated change of Government since the advent of the Republic, the owners being afraid to retain them any longer for fear of losing them on the entry of the Northern Government troops under General Chang Ching Yao in 1918.

CREDENTIALS OF SOVIET ENVOY ARE PRESENTED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, July 31.—Mr. L. M. Karakhan, Soviet Ambassador, presented his credentials to President Tsoo Kuo this morning at 11 o'clock, with a ceremony just a little more imposing than the procedure followed in the case of a foreign Minister. The President sent two carriage, the Yuan state carriage and another vehicle, to convey the visitors to the Hual Jen Tang, with the Grand Master of Ceremonies, the Assistant Grand Master of Ceremonies and a military escort.

On arrival at the palace an infantry regiment that was drawn up in waiting gave a military salute. A Chinese band played the Soviet national air as the Party entered the Hual Jen Hall. Shortly afterwards the President entered the hall and Mr. Karakhan was then escorted to President Tsoo and introduced by the Grand Master of Ceremonies. As he approached the President, followed by his staff, Mr. Karakhan and his staff bowed three times. The President returned the courtesy, while the band played the Chinese National Anthem. This was followed by presentation of the Russian Ambassador's credentials, which the President handed to Dr. Wellington Koo who was assisting at the ceremony. President Tsoo then shook hands with Mr. Karakhan and the latter introduced his staff. That brought the ceremony to a conclusion. There were no speeches, but the President expressed the hope that the relations of the two countries would grow ever more cordial, and the Russian Ambassador replied appropriately.

Unlicensed Auto Driver Kills Man On Soochow Road

An inquest was held yesterday on the body of a man killed on Soochow Road Sunday morning by an automobile. The driver of the auto was a Chinese boy of 19 years, not possessing a driver's licence, and who was taking out his employer's car when the accident occurred. The deceased is a wheelbarrow man, and was turning around the corner of the tramway island on North Soochow Road when the automobile struck him. The driver of the car made no attempt to help the injured man, but drove off, and was arrested later after the nearby Chinese constable had notified the police station.

At the inquest yesterday before Mr. Ramondino, Italian Assessor, and Magistrate Zau, the chauffeur said he had driven away to escape arrest on account of being without a licence. A verdict was brought in charging the driver with manslaughter, and the case is to be heard at the Mixed Court next Saturday.

Kuo Wen Weekly

The initial copy of the Kuo Wen Weekly, a Chinese magazine of a high order published by the Kuo Wen News Agency, made its bow before the journalistic world on Sunday. Besides a number of usually good illustrations, two very timely editorials, one on the smuggling of arms by foreigners and the other on the use of the Boxer Indemnity Funds, are contributed by Mr. Hu Lin, the Chief Editor and Lung Kwan, his associate.

Other features consist of a special report on the bombing outrage at Shamen plotted against the Governor of Indo-China; a comment on the New Constitution of China, an article on the rise of the Mah Jong Industry and fiction by the noted novelist, Ma Erh.

The new magazine is beautifully illustrated and well-gotten up in every way.

DR. W. W. PETER GUEST OF Y'S MEN'S CLUB

Tells Of Remission Of Boxer Indemnity By America

Dr. W. W. Peter, Director of the Council on Health Education, who has just returned to Shanghai after a visit to Washington, D. C. in connection with the remission of the unexpended balance of the Boxer indemnity, was the guest of honor at the regular weekly dinner of the Y's Men's Club held at the Hotel Parisien yesterday. The president of the Club, Mr. Wm. Yinson Lee, was in the chair.

Dr. W. W. Peter spoke of the difficulties that had to be overcome before members of the American legislature agreed to give their support. It was a fortunate circumstance that both senators and congressmen were friendly and sympathetic towards China. There were discouraging factors, however, and conditions in this country, but they very broadmindedly took the viewpoint that there were many other countries in a more or less disturbed state. Then there was the fact that other nations were also debtors to the United States and the likelihood of the remission of China's debt establishing a precedent for them to claim similar treatment, stood in the way. It was pointed out by Dr. Peter that a precedent had already been established as portion of the Boxer indemnity was remitted in 1908 to found the Tsinghua College. That cleared the atmosphere and the bill was passed on May 7th authorizing the President to remit to China the balance of the indemnity fund amounting to $1,127,552.32, as an act of friendship and for educational and cultural purposes. The voting was 211 for and 114 against the bill. A board consisting entirely of Chinese will be appointed by the Chinese government with full power to administer the fund after arrangements have been completed with the U. S. Government. Dr. Peter paid a tribute to Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister to Washington, for the way he handled the matter with the United States government.

Other invited guests at yesterday's dinner included Dr. T. Y. Chang of the Administration Department of the Council on Health Education, Dr. W. S. New, Mr. Harry Kingman, Mr. Geo. W. Nelson, Mr. P. F. Faison and others.

Eastern Extension Telegraph Company, Ltd.

The nineteenth annual meeting of the above Company was held at Electra House, Moorgate, on June 26, Sir John Denison-Pender, G. B. E., K. C. M. G., the chairman, presiding.

The Chairman said he was glad to say that the accounts submitted were satisfactory. It was true that, as compared with 1922, gross revenue showed a decrease of £166,705, but this was not as great as was anticipated at the beginning of the year under review. There had, however, been a sensible decrease in working expenses, mainly in cable expended on repairs, and in relief from the items of expenditure mentioned last year. The net decrease amounted to £90,285. The balance they had to deal with was £579,557, plus £382,683 brought forward, making a total of £1,062,244. They had placed £250,000 to the general reserve fund, paid £400,000 in dividends, and carried forward £412,244. Since 1913 they had laid 7,200 miles of new cable—namely, the Singapore-Hongkong, Colombo-Penang (original and duplicate), Madras-Singapore, and Singapore-Batavia (duplicate) sections—at a total cost of £2,158,370. New offices at Adelaide, Melbourne, Sydney, and quarters for staff at several stations cost £528,387, and this had been done by augmenting the capital only to the extent of £1,000,000. (Cheers). The time having come to part with their cable steamer Recorder, after forty years of excellent service to the company, the directors had made provision in the accounts for her replacement by placing to the maintenance ships reserve fund £100,000, which would be approximately the cost of the oil-fuel vessel now being built by Messrs. Alexander Stephen & Sons, Glasgow. This vessel was expected to leave England for Singapore towards the close of this year. There had been a reduction of £33,863 in the expenditure on partial duplication and renewals of cables, which indicated that the arrears of such work had now been practically cleared off. All their cables were in good order, and interruptions during the past year had been comparatively few. He said:—I may here mention that on 22 occasions of interruptions the maximum time taken in effecting repairs was 6 days 22 hours. On one other occasion it was 11 days 4 hours, the position of the inter-rupting being 1,560 miles from the repairing steamer's home port, Singapore. Only on two other occasions was the ship greatly delayed by strong monsoon weather. You will notice that the sum of £75,717 has been debited to the general reserve fund as a capital loss on the abandonment of the Hongkong-Haiphong cable. I would explain that this cable was laid in 1884 with the object of providing a duplicate means of communication between Hongkong and Cape St. James, there being a French Government cable between the latter place and Haiphong. The Hongkong-Haiphong section (consisting of 107 naut. miles and 374 naut. miles of reserved cable) was laid through the Malacca Straits, which proved to be a most unhealthy spot for a submarine cable. "Fish-hook" and "teredo" faults were ever recurrent, entailing frequent repair work. Having now three means of communication between Singapore and Hongkong, namely, one direct, one via Labuan, and one via Cape St. James, your directors decided to abandon the Haiphong connection, which has always been costly in maintenance. The complete duplication of our Singapore-Batavia section has not yet been effected; only a distance of 7 miles for the shore end at Batavia remains to be completed, for which landing rights are still being awaited from the Netherlands Indian Government.

The Minister of the Colonies, The Hague, had agreed to the conditions under which these landing rights were to have been granted, when there unfortunately arose a matter in connection with the Netherlands Indian Government's financial position vis-a-vis the German Netherlands Telegraph Company. With the latter our company had certain working arrangements, which were terminated, on order of our High Court, as from August 4, 1914. The Dutch Government, being unable to get payments due to them from the German Netherlands Company, are claiming the amount from the Eastern Telegraph Company, but as a conference on this subject is being arranged, and may shortly take place, which will, I hope, lead to a satisfactory settlement, I do not wish to go more fully into the matter. It is one of the war legacies which have been found so difficult to settle.

CONDITIONS IN CHINA

You will have learnt from recent Press publications that no improvement has taken place in the condition of affairs in China, which unhappy country is still at the mercy of conflicting political parties. Under this state of affairs, the country's financial position is in a grave condition. Her monetary obligations to our and the Great Northern Telegraph Companies have fallen into arrears, both as regards payments on account of the cost of the Shanghai-Chefoo-Taku cables (which were laid by the Companies for the Chinese Government in 1900), and in repayments of the Loan of £500,000 granted to her by the Companies in 1911. In addition to these obligations, China finds it difficult to liquidate the balances due to the Companies in settlement of the current Traffic Accounts. The situation is being carefully watched, and such pressure as can be brought to bear is being exercised. The existing Traffic and Loan Agreements are due to terminate on December 31, 1924; and that relating to the above-mentioned cables on December 31, 1925, subject to the Companies having received by that date the full cost of the cables. With the support of the Foreign Office, negotiations have been carried on throughout the year with the Chinese Telegraph Administration, without, however, our being able to arrive at any definite conclusion.

In reply to a shareholder's question as to "wireless," the Chairman said that the Company had applied for a license for Great Britain, and would have to wait for the Government's declaration of policy. As to India, they had received the terms for a license, but it was absolutely impossible for the Company to carry out those terms. With regard to China, that had been a more prolonged business and a more difficult one. At the Washington Conference of 1922 there were many interests trying to get into China. There was a question as to maintaining the "open door," and an arrangement was recommended with regard to wireless concessions by which several interested parties would co-operate, the Company being one. There were many negotiations with the Wireless Company over here, who took up the question and negotiated on its own behalf, and other interests. There were two stumbling blocks which he need not mention because one was vital. The Wireless Company took the line that if the Cable Companies joined in the combination they were to give an undertaking to maintain higher rates for cables than for wireless. He need not tell them that the Company would certainly not do that unless it got adequate safeguards, for it would absolutely tie their hands and compel them to work at a higher rate while leaving wireless perfectly free. That was made a sine qua non and since then negotiations had fallen through.

The report and accounts were adopted. The Chairman then proposed the re-election of Sir Charles Addis, K. C. M. G., and Mr. J. C. Denison-Pender, as Directors. He said that he had great pleasure in proposing the re-election of Sir Charles Stewart Addis, because any one who knew anything of China was aware that Sir Charles was an authority in connection with that country. He thought the Company could congratulate itself on having secured a Director who could render such great service.

The motion having been carried, and the auditors re-appointed, the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman, directors and staff.

WEEK IS PLANNED TO GIVE FILLIP TO U. S. COTTON

Product Is Unadvertised And Drive Needed To Induce Buying

Washington, June 17.—Talk of a "cotton goods week" to encourage sales of cotton cloth was heard here today. The suggestion, it is reported, is being discussed in the trade as a means of stimulating business and to aid the textile industry to recover from the present slump. It is contended in some quarters that cotton goods are underadvertised as wearing apparel, and a drive which would bring these goods before the public simultaneously throughout the country, it is asserted, would enable stronger competition to be given silks, particularly as women's wear.

At present it is claimed most of the garments worn by women are silk, or artificial silk, and as a consequence cotton goods are suffering. Moreover it is declared that cotton goods are suffering from a stoppage of purchases which could to some extent, be overcome by a concerted drive by the industry with the educational features which would attach to such a campaign. It is believed that active discussion of a "cotton goods week" in the trade can be expected shortly.

While the decline in cotton goods imports in recent months has given rise to the view in some quarters that foreign cloths need not be considered as an important factor in the situation in this country, there is some opinion to the effect that the falling off in imports is seasonal and a recovery may be expected if the usual trend of the cotton cloth movement is followed out. Last year, it is explained, imports of cotton cloths fell off in April and May, but recovered somewhat in June and in July set a high record when 16,000,000 square yards came from Great Britain. A recurrence of anything like this seasonal movement this year, it is contended, would mean that imports would be on the upward trend by July.

It is claimed nevertheless that several factors are involved in the gradual decline of cotton goods imports during the past few months that were not in evidence a year ago. Since the great bulk of those imports come from Great Britain, it is contended that the price situation explains some of the recession in the movement.

During the past two or three months, it is pointed out, cotton goods prices in Manchester have been rising, while in New York prices have fallen. Recently, it is explained, prices have approached a parity in New York and Manchester, which would account for the falling off of imports in many types of cloth. Furthermore it is asserted that agitation arisen in New England and New York, has had some effect in lessening the demand for the imported cloths. Another factor is declared to be the declining popularity of broadcloth which is a large item in the imports of cotton cloths. Present style tendencies, it is explained, have placed emphasis on fabrics on which American mills are better able to compete than on broadcloth and are believed to have slowed up the inward movement of the cloth.

Opinion differs as to whether these various factors occurring this year will offset the seasonal increase in cotton goods imports which usually develops in mid-summer but some experts believe that a greater volume of imports may be expected during June and July than were received in April and May.

Piece Goods

Messrs. Hbert and Co., Ltd., state in their market report dated August 1:

Business on the whole shows some little improvement and it is thought that further sales may soon be made to the Szechuen merchants who are for the moment operating fairly actively in yarn, as noted below, and who may be expected later on to turn their attention to piece goods. A certain amount is also being done for the River Ports which is rather surprising in view of the phenomenally high water in the Yangtze and the widespread floods in various parts of the Valley. The current has now reached the highest point for about 35 years and several important centers such as Kiating are completely flooded, while Hankow itself is threatened with an inundation at any moment, and the condition of the River there is such that telegraphic instructions have been received here to suspend shipments of cargo for the time being.

The New York cotton market is evidently in a very sensitive state and the daily fluctuations are so wide that it is impossible to gauge the situation accurately. As far as this market is concerned the effect is to make replacement business impossible as manufacturers maintain their firm attitude and show no inclination to meet buyers from this end even when the difference between them is slight.

Grey Shirtings Generally.—The lighter weights have not been in much request during the week but the demand for the heavier cloths remain about the same with prices keeping very steady. Sales coming to our notice are:

10 lbs. Rabbit and Moon at Tls. 8.45, Red Cock at Tls. 7.40 and Empress at Tls. 7.15.

12 lbs. 36 inch; Red Cock and Soldier D.D.D. at Tls. 10.30. There was no material change at the auctions.

White Shirtings.—Enquiries for shipment to Szechuen are more plentiful and sellers are asking for higher prices, which are being paid in some instances. We hear of business in:—Mountain Flower No. 1 at Tls. 10.45, Nine Blue Horses at Tls. 10.35, Nine Gold "Tat" at Tls. 10.35, and Fireworks at Tls. 6.50. The auction goods advanced a mace or two all round.

Local Sheetings.—A substantial demand from Northern ports, probably for military purposes, has led to sales in appreciable quantities but business from other sources shows very little improvement.

Dyed and Fancy Cottons.—Judging by the auctions the tone is rather better all round, bidding being brisk and prices on a higher basis in most cases.

Cotton.—Very little interest is being taken in local grades except by way of speculation in futures, the nature of which varies with the New York quotation from day to day. Shensi is quoted for spot at about Tls. 47.00/48.00 but with mills curtailing work more and more the amount of business done is negligible.

Rain is now very badly needed and if it should come in the near future the new crop should prove to be an excellent one, conditions having been otherwise practically perfect.

Yesterday's quotation for Middling "Spot" in New York is telegraphed as G. cts. 32.40, against G. cts. 35.25 a week ago.

Local Yarn.—A very welcome demand has set in from Szechuen which has so far led to purchases of about 5,000 bales, mostly 10's and 20's and practically all from second hands. We hear of no fresh sales of any importance by bills but clearances are a little better.

Silk Report

Messrs. William Little & Co., Ltd., state in their silk report dated August 2.

Our last report was dated 25th inst.

There has been more business passing this week, chiefly for Europe, in spite of the adverse franc exchange, and with any marked improvement it would seem as though demand would broaden. A purchase of crack chop New Style raised the hopes of Silkmen that the long deferred American demand was about to commence, but their hope has not been justified so far. Likewise in Steam Filatures some tentative enquiries caused an advance in asking rates but prices are back again to former rates. Japan reports a firmer market with Shinsu No. 1 Yen 1.700.

Tsatie Filature.—Crown No. 1, 2, Tls. 880 av. Pegasus 1, 2, Tls. 840. Kung Kee Mars, 1 Tls. 760.

Tsatie New Style.—M. H. Y. Blue Dragon and Peima No. 1, 2, Tls. 900 av. Blue Serpent and Broncho Tls. 890 av. Condor Ex. 1 Tls. 825 av.

Steam Filature.—A certain amount of business has been done from Crack chops to Medium at former rates.

Mienchew Filatures.—Good 44/17 Tls. 770/80.

Tusash Filatures 8 coc.—Further business is reported in Best at Tls. 650 av.

Hongkong Stocks

Messrs. Moxon and Taylor state in their share report dated Hongkong, July 25:

We have again had an active market during the week under review and prices generally have been well maintained, various Companies having declared interim dividends.

Shanghai market continues quiet with very little doing.

The following are the principal alterations since last week:

Hongkong Banks.—Have had a sharp rise closing strong with buyers at $1.185.

Unions.—Have been the medium of a fair business at $224 to $225.

Hotels.—Are in good demand and are wanted at quotations.

Hongkong Lands.—Have again been the medium of considerable business closing steady with buyers at $114½.

Humphreys.—After declining to $22½, close rather firmer with buyers at that rate.

Cements.—A fair number of shares have changed hands at $27½ to $27¾ for Combined shares.

Kowloon Wharves.—Have taken a big jump and are in strong demand at $202½ cash and $209 for October.

Hongkong Docks.—Are steady at quotations.

Shanghai Docks.—Are quiet with buyers at Tls. 99.

Ropes.—Are rather better and have come to business at $57½ for Combined shares.

Hongkong Trams.—Have declined slightly, closing with buyers at $42 and sellers at $42½.

Peak Trams.—Are in good demand, sellers being few and far between.

China Sugars.—A fair number of shares have changed hands at $27.

China Providents.—Are quiet at quotations.

China Lights.—Are still in some demand and a good many shares have changed hands.

Dairy Farms.—After declining to $26½, have firmed up and are wanted at $27½ without attracting sellers.

Lane Crawford.—Are firm with buyers at $17½ at which price business has been through.

Unrepentant Germany

THE British Prime Minister, during the week-end, sent an invitation to Germany expressing the hope that the German delegation would arrive in London at an early date to settle finally the vexed question of reparations. A later message from Berlin received on Sunday stated that the German delegation were to leave for London yesterday, but it is devoutly to be hoped that they are not going there in the temper in which President Ebert, on the eve of the tenth anniversary of the outbreak of the War, addressed a monster meeting from the steps of the Reichstag, in which he declared that Germany ten years ago "had resorted to arms solely in defence of the Fatherland" and adjured Germans to rehabilitate the Fatherland. This fresh effort to falsify history in face of Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg's candid admission that Germany "willed the war" is doubly unfortunate in that the utterance comes on the eve of momentous deliberations in London from which much is expected. It cannot improve France's temper and cannot surely be an incentive to the Germans to make amends to those whom they have wronged when their chief executive tells them in so many words that Germany, and not the Allies, is the aggrieved party.

A wholesome corrective to the declaration of President Ebert that Germany resorted to arms solely in defence of the Fatherland is furnished by a little book entitled "Belgium," by Brand Whitlock, at one time United States Ambassador to Belgium, who made such heroic efforts to prevent the hideous crime which resulted in the death of that gallant nurse, Miss Edith Cavell. This book, more than any other, reveals the truth about Belgium and the German invasion. When the Germans entered Belgium and the Government and diplomatic offices were moved from Brussels to Havre, Brand Whitlock did not go. He stayed with the Belgian people even though the Court had been forced to withdraw and the King was leading the army in person on the battlefield. Day by day, Whitlock stood between the helpless civilians and brutal invaders; day by day, he kept his diary, recording the outrages committed in defiance of the laws of decency and right. Were these atrocities committed "solely in defence of the Fatherland," as President Ebert now claims? Why were nameless outrages perpetrated by the German hordes which could have served no military purpose whatsoever? From the first day of that world-rousing crime when the Germans broke their pact and crossed the border, until the day when the Stars and Stripes grimly vanished from the American Legation at Brussels, the history of Belgium is simply and accurately written, telling those things which Whitlock saw and which he knows to be true. The detail and scope of the book, revealing many official and unknown facts, make this one of the most astounding documents ever written. There can be no more authentic summary of Belgium's story to come out of the War, and Brand Whitlock's account will become known as the most damning and convicting accusation that Germany will have to face despite the historically inaccurate utterances, such as that from President Ebert, which find expression from time to time.

It has been one of the pet arguments of the Junkers in Germany that Great Britain, and later the United States, entered the War not on a question of principle but really because these two countries were jealous of German trade rivalry in the main markets of the world. This contention was belied years ago by Mr. Lloyd George, when, speaking to the British Trade Union Conference, the ex-British Premier made his most important statement of British war aims. On that historic occasion, Mr. Lloyd George stated, in terms which left no room for ambiguity, that it was not their wish or intention to question or destroy that position (Germany's world position) for the future, but rather to turn her aside from hopes and schemes of military domination. Nor did they enter the War merely to alter or destroy the imperial constitution of Germany, much as they considered that military and autocratic constitution a dangerous anachronism in the twentieth century. Their point of view was that the adoption of a really democratic constitution by Germany would be the most convincing evidence that her old spirit of military domination had, indeed, died in that War and would make it much easier for them to conclude a broad, democratic peace with her. There was no demand for a war indemnity, such as that imposed on France by Germany in 1871. It was not an attempt to shift the cost of warlike operation from one belligerent to another, which might or might not be defensible. This fact is one of the things which the Germans would do well to remember whenever they are inclined to complain of the alleged harshness of the peace terms to which their statesmen affixed their signatures.

Mr. Lloyd George, in the speech to which reference has been made above, tersely summed up the Allies' point of view when he declared that the latter were aiming at the adoption of a really democratic constitution by Germany which would be the most convincing evidence that her old spirit of military domination had, indeed, died in the War and would make it much easier for them (the Allies) to conclude a broad, democratic peace with her. But when President Ebert, on the eve of the anniversary of the War, adjures the Germans, in terms of language likely to inflame them, to rehabilitate the Fatherland, "which had resorted to force solely in self-defence," there is a distinct danger of the peace signed with Germany proving, after all, merely a truce. With a genuine change of heart on the part of Germany, the world might as well frankly abandon any hope of reconstruction in Europe, and with Soviet Russia pulling the wires behind the scenes, both in the West and in the East, the danger of international complications is no chimera born of a perverted imagination. The Germans are being made to believe that they are the victims of a harsh and unjust peace, and if such a view is suffered to prevail in the German mind, Germany is likely to prove as much of an international problem as Soviet Russia.

"Adventures In Chinese Geography!"

HARRY LEON WILSON, one of the best known popular writers of the United States, made a trip through, or rather along the edge of Asia a few months ago, touching at Hongkong, Canton, Shanghai and at the ports of Japan. His experiences are now appearing in the Saturday Evening Post under the above title and are interesting chiefly because they are "different" from the ordinary stuff turned out by writers who follow the so-called "beaten trails" through the Far East.

Whether Mr. Wilson was a passenger in one of those tourist ships which, through their advertisements, offer the opportunity of seeing the world "at one gulp" and, basing our remarks on recent experiences, permit their passengers to view Shanghai from the anchorage beyond the break-water at Woosung, we do not know, but he started writing about China and the Chinese from the viewpoint of Singapore. And then he came on up to Hongkong and Canton.

His first impressions of Chinese life were gained from a perusal of the Straits Times of Singapore and he was particularly impressed by the correspondence column wherein an irate citizen who signed himself "Public Boon and Safety" demanded that "Chinese gentlemen who receive orders and distinctions from our King should show more energy in helping the Government when the peace of Singapore is menaced by Chinese ruffians." Then there is some more about a few armed robberies and a "prominent Chinese business man who was shot while taking a short cut through a back lane to the dwelling of his No. 2 wife, which he fails to survive." Another correspondent told of a Chinese constable who accepted a bribe of forty cents. The inspector who reported the affair was named Lanigan! But we will permit the distinguished American writer to tell about it himself.

"We read a fresh assortment of misdoings by Chinese roughs, ranging from foul murders to reckless driving. We are disturbed by this now familiar note in the day's news. We are convinced, however, that the Singapore Chinese have learned their bad ways since they came here. Has not every American known that this race is staunchly honest and law-abiding? Do not all Japanese banks employ Chinese cashiers for this very reason? But from the tough way these Singapore Chinese act, you might think they were white people. We must move on to Hongkong, where the race must retain its native probity and talk in maxims from a scholarly past."

At Hongkong, again, Mr. Wilson views China through the morning paper. "At the very edge of China proper, let us look over an unspoiled people talking in the high lucidity of Confucian maxims and so honest that less upright people must have them for cashiers. And believe it or not, the outstanding headline on the first page is 'Bandits Cooperate for Winter Outrages.' 'Bandits Take Heavy Toll along Hankow Railway.' Again we read, 'Another Bandit Outrage,' telling how a train arrived at Kuanting during a raid and the train being fired on, retreated."

"At Hongkong, as at Singapore, the Chinese are misbehaving. A shipping-line clerk, also on the first page, obtains 10,992 taels by check forgeries so clever that a white man might have been the artist. He is traced to a 'palatial home he has bought and put in charge of one of his lady friends, but the bird had flown.' It is all so homelike. There follow a pay-roll robbery in the New York manner, stabbings, murders, and burglaries, all by Chinese talent. There is a good kidnapping redolent of Latin New York. The son of Chan Yan-po, master of the Hip Wo pawn shop, is held for a ransom of $80,000 and 800 taels of opium, and so on."

"So here we must concede that gossip has maligned, or at least unjustly reproached, the Chinese. Long supposed to be incorrigibly honest—with an honesty in Western eyes not easily to be distinguished from feeble-mindedness—they are seen to be not helplessly upright. This is encouraging for their future. To be sure, no white race lauds dishonesty; on the other hand, a race honest because it doesn't know any better is not precisely held in contempt perhaps. Still there is something about it to arouse emotions of humorous pity in races not constitutionally inhibited from the other thing. We like to feel that we are honest because we wish to be and not from any neutral effect."

"But let it be recalled in China's behalf that her contact with the more agile Western mind is a thing of yesterday. Had that Great Wall been built this side of China instead of the other, had the slogan been 'Keep China Yellow,' it is probable that honesty would still be rather instinctive among them and the word of a Chinese so good that no bond would be thought of. But along the edges where these people have been blessed with more sophisticated contacts they have made really remarkable progress."

"The world's serious thinkers are now, according to Mr. Wilson, concerned about the threatened supremacy of the white races. Their output for five years makes a library of itself—the Revolt Against Civilization, the Rising Tide of Color, Mankind at the Cross-roads—that sort of thing which it is ominously proved that the white man had better watch his step or the hordes of Islam will get him, or the Little Brown People, or a melange of Asiatic colors. Or it may be China. 'China alone,' says Race and Solidarity, 'when industrialized and militarized, will be able to test the strength of the combined nations of Europe.'

"Poor China! Probably no race since the Heidelberg man lost his jaw has been so much written about by professional guessers. China has been pretty fairly industrialized for five thousand years or so, and there is every reason to suppose that it will never be militarized even against foreign exploiters. It hasn't the slightest wish to test the strength of the combined nations of Europe. And it knows a game worth two at that. . . . So China merely keeps on training for the Grand International Endurance Sweepstakes that is bound to come, conscious of its vastly superior equipment of mind and body for sustaining life under adverse pressure."

Joseph Conrad

THE man Teodor Josef Konrad Korzeniowski, known to the world as Joseph Conrad, is dead but his name shall remain immortal as that of the greatest writer of the sea and ships.

When the Polish boy, Conrad, came down to the Mediterranean a half century ago, he was in search of the excitement and adventure which later gave him the background for his stories. He was in his teens then and the world of English Literature had little cause to know that it would later reverberate him as it does today. At that time he knew no other than his native tongue and the French that befitted a Pole of good family. To-day it stands out as not the least of individual accomplishments in the world, that he is universally accepted as a master of the English language.

From "Almayer's Folly," published in 1895, to the recent publication of "The Rover," Conrad has written almost a volume per year and it is as a fitting climax that his publishers have produced the entire collection, in a de luxe edition, on the very eve of his death.

Conrad was near the age of forty when he was forced, by a fever acquired at the Congo, to quit the sea. He settled in England, the land of his choice, and in his little cottage in Kent restarted his literary career as a means of livelihood. Without the force of this circumstance, which necessitated his writing for a living, the literary treasures of Conrad's creative genius might never have been known. His death would have probably been that of a sailor and there is little reason to believe that the sea would have missed him as a Master Mariner but the world shall certainly miss him as a Master Writer. The loss is irreparable.

Our Literary Column

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

By Mathy

GRAYSON
I am one of the lovers of David Grayson and his writings. They are a new and needed and refreshing note in literature, and the fact that a popular monthly apparently believes that it is not ruining its circulation by publishing this wholesome stuff, along with the usual sex, adventure, and celebrity material that is supposed to lure the dimes from news-stand patrons, demonstrates that there is still a remnant of the elect among us.

Grayson's value is that he has stopped to look at life. He is not going anywhere. He is just taking a walk. There is no burning fever of "getting on" in him. It is the journey that is worth while to him; it is of little matter at what inn or farmhouse the day's end shall find him.

Thus he rediscovers for us, what every wise man has discovered, that life is good in the living of it, and not only for some reward at the close of it.

He comes upon this secret as we all come upon it, by just standing still a bit and looking. He opens the gates of his soul and the beauties of this world troop in.

Look long and wholeheartedly at any of nature's creatures, a tree or cloud, a meadow in the rain or an upland white-swathed in snow; listen patiently and with childlike openness of heart to any of nature's sounds, the moving of the wind among the pines, or the call of birds from the hedge, or the babbling of water; study the elusive odors, not only of strongly perfumed flowers, but of such fugacious scents as that thrown off by sawn wood, or rain on a dusty road, or autumn leaves, or the fresh greenness of spring, or grapes, or hay, or a salt marsh; try to fix and remember what you perceive, let yourself appreciate to the full the subtle messages that nature sends you, and you will find that what Grayson says is true, that "this world we live in, so dumbly, so carelessly, would be more glorious than the tinest heaven of poets, if only we knew how to lay hold upon it."

That is the art of living, the finest of the fine arts. For art, freeing itself from the intemperance of moral purpose, "goes away from God to find God," finds Him best and most truly in the love of His handiwork. The richest lives are those that get as many pulsations as possible into the brief interval between birth and death.

The desire of beauty is the highest wisdom. And the desire of beauty is that much misunderstood thing we call art. Art does not mean only paintings and statues and stuffy collections; it means the laying out of the soul upon beauty, the hunger and thirst after beauty—and blessed are they that have it, for they shall be filled.

"Art," says a great critic, "comes to you professing frankly to give nothing but the highest quality to your moments as they pass, and simply for those moments' sake."

Cutting Loose From Old Mother Nature

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
The chemists are becoming the "bad boys" in Old Mother Nature's school. They are not bad through idleness, nor through love of mischief, but because they are too impatient and critical for the old lady. They refuse to stick to her antiquated text books, and to be limited by her annoying restrictions. They are extremely inquisitive, and poke into her cupboards and closets, and often discover things which she seems desirous to keep both out of sight and out of use.

Some of these busybodies say that they can handle nature's things better than she can, and use them more economically. In fact, lack of efficiency is one of their chief complaints against their ancient mistress, whom they accuse of great wastefulness and unprogressiveness.

The latest revolt of these ambitious and unruly spirits is against the Old Mother's dietary. They want to provide their own food, and in unlimited quantities; at least they don't want her to ration it. "Synthetic food" is their ideal, stamped "made in the laboratory" as a guarantee of the uniformity, so dear to this leveling age.

The chemists admit that there seems to be no way of getting around dependence upon the sun's radiation for the energy essential to produce food for man, but they claim that Nature is outrageously wasteful in utilizing this energy.

"Agriculture," says Dr. Carl A. Alsborg, who directs food research at Stanford University, "is very inefficient when measured in terms of the proportion of the total solar radiation streaming upon the crop area that it renders available to man. From man's point of view the crop plant is inefficient both because it works only a part of the year, and because a portion of the energy it stores up is in a form not directly available to him as food. In the process of living and maintaining itself the plant dissipates a large part of the energy it acquires from the sun and this is not recovered in the crop."

The plant, from its point of view, might reply: "Well, that's pretty cool! So you want me to work with never a moment's rest, while you do no work that you can avoid, and you would also starve me in order to get all the product of my work for yourself! But, if you make me kill myself where will you be?"

"Oh, no matter," says the chemist. "When we have made a few more syntheses we may have no use for you at all. It would be foolish for us to continue this wasteful process of first letting you use a lot of food energy for yourself, which you throw away on such things as gaudy flowers and useless perfumes; and next, feeding you to cattle and sheep, only to recover perhaps as little as two percent of the original energy from steaks and chops. Besides, you only utilize a very few of the light waves, while we are aiming to use nearly all of them, and when we succeed as we have good hopes of doing, we shall call upon you for nothing, except possibly a few of your flavors for dessert."

The suggestion is made in entire seriousness that chemistry may eventually free the human race from dependence on plants and animals for food. Recent advances have made it theoretically probable that proteins, starches and fats will be manufactured in the laboratory by chemically combining their elements. Many of the amino acids, which furnish the basis for proteins, have already been produced synthetically. But there is one class of substances that the chemist is still unable to produce artificially, and that is the vitamins; so that, as far as appears at present, it may be necessary to continue to depend upon crops to furnish them. However, one of the "elusive vitamins"—one that stimulates the growth of yeast—has just been isolated, and its properties have been closely studied, at Columbia University.

Are We on the Eve of a Revival of the Spanish Mode?

Almost every woman would like to be persuaded that if you followed her ancestry back, long enough and through the right ramification of the network of her heredity, you would land somewhere in Spain. She likes to think that one of her forefathers fell victim to the dark-eyed charms of some Spanish senorita. Once you have been persuaded that there is even a drop of Spanish blood in your veins you convince yourself that that small infusion has strongly marked your temperament. Even if you are as fair as Eve, fair-skinned and blue-eyed, you feel sometimes as if you too could flirt beneath the shade of a Spanish mantilla and could even tread out the steps of a Spanish dance to the music of your own castanets.

That no doubt accounts for the preposterous number of Spanish ladies that always appear at a costume dance. Good women like to assume the role of the naughty Carmen as much as peace-loving men delight in taking on the semblance of pirates.

For several seasons there has been just a suggestion of Spanish influence in the current fashion. Now at last we may be approaching a more veritable revival. We have worn the shawl to a great extent with a Spanish feeling. For the Grand Prix ball held this month in Paris the costumes are to follow the mode of old Spain as shown in Goya, Velasquez, etc. The prediction is that these present-day interpretations of this picturesque old costumery will have definite effect on the development of the mode for the next few months.

Meantime there is no abatement in the interest that is felt in Spanish shawls. Black lace or white lace shawls are used by some women for evening wraps while enormous silk shawls, richly embroidered and edged with fringe in the Spanish manner, are everywhere seen among women who can afford them.

Richly embroidered Spanish shawls are worn by smart women for evening wraps.

immediately covered with moisture. You will find the same thing true in your own kitchen and pantry. It is on humid days that vegetables and fruits are most apt to spoil, while on the hot, dry days they are more apt to dry, and wither without such disastrous effect. Put in cold water and then laid away in the refrigerator.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

IF THE DAY IS HUMID—Beware the day that is damp and humid, even though the temperature is rather low for summer. It is on just such days when food is most apt to spoil. Our butcher says that it isn't the very hot, sunny day that causes him most concern. When the sun is bright the air is dry and meat does not spoil so quickly as when the air is laden with moisture. A piece of meat out of the refrigerator for a little while is dried all over by the air and is far less apt to take on a disagreeable flavor than when it is exposed on a fairly cool damp day when it is

The Chess Marvel

The latest chess marvel, Alexander Alekhine, who recently in New York accomplished the astounding feat of playing and finishing twenty-six games of chess without sight of boards or pieces, thereby established a new world's record for blindfold playing. The best previous records were by Julius Breyer, of Hungary, against twenty-five, and Richard Reti, of Czechoslovakia, against twenty-four.

Alekhine won sixteen games, lost five and drew five, equivalent to a total of 18½ to 7½.

To the last he never once lost his way, his splendidly trained memory always standing by him.

Since last December, when Alekhine gave his first blindfold exhibition against players, he has given five performances, including the one in which he broke the record. Out of a total of seventy-seven games played by him he won fifty-one, lost eleven and drew fifteen.

In addition, while on tour he made it a practice of playing two blindfold games in most of his simultaneous exhibitions along with an average of thirty games over the board. In these he was almost uniformly successful, losing only one and drawing only one out of a total of thirty-four.

Chess seems to be a game that is like music or art in that it demands a natural adaptation to it. A born chess player is a chess player; and one who is not can never beat one who is.

It is a game that depends greatly upon memory and also upon a certain natural gift of ability.

Those who have it probably find it out. Those who have it not probably will never discover it, and it will remain a mystery to the end of their days why people of smaller intellectual attainments continue to win against them.

This is the only game known to the writer that is greater than the human mind. It is the only game in which one cannot become perfect.

This, perhaps, accounts for its perpetual lure.

Drunken Pilot Is Cause Of Sinking Of Steamer Fukien

400 Drowned As Ship Is Wrecked Off Bingham
Peninsula

(China Press Correspondence)
Hingwa, Fukien, July 27.— Details are just coming in of the wreck of the Steamer Fukien off
the Bingham Peninsula Tuesday night with the loss of almost all on board. The steamer plies between Amoy and Hingwa and was approaching the Hingwa bay

being only a couple of hours run away when the disaster took place. Survivors report that the pilot was drunk. It was a clear night with only light breeze. The vessel went on the rocks and it is thought that nearly four hundred persons were drowned. A few climbed the masts or secured life belts and were saved. So far as known here there were no foreign passengers.

SHIPPING LINE WILL OPEN NEW OFFICES TODAY

Java-China-Japan Headquarters In Brunner-Mond Building

A development of interest in the shipping world is the opening this morning of the new offices of the Java-China-Japan Line. The company owns and operates a large fleet of freighters.

For twenty-one years this company had been content with entrusting the Shanghai agency to the Holland China Trading Company. The latter conducted it in a creditable manner during the period, but recently it was decided to establish the company's own offices in Shanghai with a view to developing the trade between North China and the Dutch East Indies.

Similar methods were adopted in Hongkong with remarkable success, with the result that today
the Hongkong-Dutch Indies trade has increased by leaps and bounds. The opportunities of increasing the volume of trade, both import and export, between North

HANIHARA HOPES EXCLUSION BILL MAY BE REVISED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Tokio, Aug. 3.—Mr. Hanihara, the Japanese Ambassador to the United States, returned from America this morning. In an interview he declared that he had not been recalled but that he had returned to discuss the situation with the Government. He refused to discuss the question of immigration until after his report to Baron Shidehara, the Foreign Minister, but he expressed the hope that the election would change the attitude of Congress towards exclusion. Mr.
Hanihara said that the question would not be quickly settled and expressed the opinion that it might be taken up again after the Amer-

Shanghai Kuomintang Men Issue Lengthy Manifesto On Attitude Of Council

Reiterate Past Policy Of International Friendship
And Say Advocacy Of A General Strike In Shanghai Has Been Discouraged

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Shanghai, August 3.—The following translation of an order issued by the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang to its members at Shanghai has been received from Reuter's Correspondent
at Canton:—

A report has been received from the Shanghai members of the Kuomintang that the letter dated June 20 of the Chairman of the Municipal Council of the International Settlement of Shanghai, in reply to the Senior Consul, indicates an intention on the part of the Council, at the instigation of the illegal Government of Peking, to take action detrimental to the Party. Local members, being highly incensed thereby, have submitted proposals that the Kuomintang should stand its ground and refrain from interfering with the activities, as in the days before the Boxer rising, of the secret societies, the Green and Red sections of the Kolao Hui. Other members advocate the encouragement of a general strike in the Foreign Settlement.

The Kuomintang declines to entertain such reactionary proposals and the following order is hereby issued:—
It is the duty of this Party to make China a really independent and sovereign State on the basis of the Party's Three Principles.
It regards all narrow and violent anti-foreign sentiments as harmful to society and the world at large and detrimental to the complete independence and equality of the Chinese State and race. For this reason the Party itself in any strongly exerted itself in suppressing such tendencies.

In 1900 while the Manchu Empress Dowager and nobility were encouraging the Boxers in their insane movement to "uphold the Manchu and destroy the foreigners",
the same year the Kuomintang which had started a revolution at Wuchow accorded protection to foreign life and property within the affected area in accordance with international law, thus showing its opposition to the antiforeign policy of the Manchu Government. Since then whenever the revolutionists took up arms, they never failed to take special care to give adequate protection to foreigners. During the 1911 revolution there was not a single case of violation of foreign life and property, although revolutionary troops were spread throughout the country. This was due to the fact that the Party's policy has had a salutary influence on the minds of the people, and has been obeyed by the members. When the President of our Party, Dr. Sun Yat-sen, took up office as provisional President of the Republic on January 1, 1912,
he declared that China should observe all the obligations of a civilized State in order to enjoy all the privileges of a civilized State. Thus the Party's policy and attitude have always been clear and known to the world. During the last 13 years the Northern militarists, having usurped the Peking government, have not hesitated to work in league with the Imperialistic Powers and to sell the country in order to further their selfish aims. Our people have often denounced their slavishness towards foreign Powers, but the minds of the reactionaries and militarists are really suffused with medieval and monarchial notions and superstitions which are closely associated with anti-foreign sentiments. While in their conduct they are servile, in their mentality they are really hostile to foreigners. This is proved by the widespread growth in recent years of secret societies in the North among the leading militarists and reactionaries, which worship such gods as Lu Shun-yang (See note at end), whose orders are issued through the medium of the planchette and who is believed to be able to destroy an enemy by the use of the "Flying Swords". The aims and characters of such societies are really similar to those of the Boxer movement.
The Kuomintang plans to exterminate such societies because they are identified or associated with medieval and monarchial beliefs to the detriment of the State as well as of international relations
owing to their anti-foreign tendencies. Wherever the influence of the Kuomintang extends such beliefs are automatically eradicated; on the other hand, where it does not prevail such mischievous beliefs take root and spread. For instance, in Anhui which is outside the influence of the Party there is Tao Tao Hui (大刀會, Great Sword Society) and in portions of Szechuan recently wrecked from the Kuomintang there exist what is known as a Shen Ta Hui (神打會, Divine Fighting Society).

The Kuomintang should therefore realize that its historic mission is to lead the country in the revolutionary movement and should not throw off the restraints hitherto imposed on the revolutionary armies. It should continue to discountenance all barbarous antiforeign acts. All the members should be guided by this policy and set an example to the people

so that they may not be led astray.
Even should foreigners not understand clearly our policy and go so far as to help the Peking Government against our Party, treating it as their friend and as their enemy, and supporting Peking which is their enemy as their friend, perhaps compelling it, when necessary, to adopt measures of self-protection, it will, nevertheless,
continue to maintain the past policy of international friendliness.

The proposal to encourage a general strike in the foreign Settlement likewise cannot be considered as it is too drastic a measure.

Moreover, the Municipal Council's reply to the Senior Consul, while referring to persons "secretly or otherwise plotting against the security or well-being of the Chinese Government", does not necessarily apply to members of the Party. It is true that the Party has always strenuously opposed the illegal Peking Government from first to last. But since Tsoo Kun usurped the power of the Peking Government through corruption and bribery last year, open opposition has been aroused throughout the whole country, excepting only such areas as are immediately under his despotic influence where persons dare not give utterance to their indignation. Besides the South-Western Provinces, Manchuria and Chekiang, even the Shanghai-Woosung region has clearly expressed its repudiation of and opposition to the Peking Government, as evident by the declaration of the General Chamber of Commerce and the attitude of the Military Governor of Shanghai.
The Municipal authorities in the International Settlement cannot be blind to the real sentiments of the people and side with the Peking Government to oppose right and Popular Opinion. Even if they could do so, they could not reverse
the policy of neutrality hitherto observed by civilized Powers without the approval of the Consular and Diplomatic Bodies and the foreign Governments. We do not believe that such approval will be given.

Therefore, it behooves the members of the Party to maintain an attitude of calmness and patience, to refrain from all precipitate action and to await further instructions.
Canton July 21, 1924.
(Translator's Note.—Lu Shun-yang, or Lu Tung-pin, who lived during the Tang Dynasty, was a Taoist student and canonised as a God after his death. Two years ago an official document actually appeared in the Peking Government Gazette in which a banking corporation, formed by prominent people and officials, petitioned for registration with this Taoist God, Lu Shun-yang, as its President. The application for registration was granted by the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce. There is also it is reported, a society in Peking, organised by prominent military and civil officials, with Lu Shun-yang as its President, Tsoo Kun as its Vice-President, and Wang Huiching and others as directors.)
